COLUMBUS WAS A DR.

COOK, SAYS VIGNAUD

PARIS, April 5.—Simultaneously with the erection of a colossal statue in honor of Christopher Columbus at Buenos Ayres, will be published here on Saturday two volumes of a work by Henry Vignaud, first secretary of the American embassy, in which the discoverer of America is branded an impostor and a humbug, and placed in a class with explorers like Dr. Cook.

Mr. Vignaud retired from the American embassy two years ago and has since devoted his entire time to the completion of a study of Columbus, which consumed in all fifty years. The author is now 81 years old. He is celebrated as a historian and was recently consulted by the Pope when it was proposed to canonize Columbus. At that time Mr. Vignaud showed that the explorer was anything but a saintly man, and that he had at least one illegitimate son.

In his study of Columbus, Mr. Vignaud undertakes to prove that the explorer's discovery of America was not the result of his own genius; that the expedition was not based upon scientific data, but that Columbus actually learned of the existence of America from an ignorant sailor, who had been there ahead of him. In a word, that America was discovered long before Columbus ever organized his expedition, and that he merely took the credit from another man unknown to history.

COMSTOCK MAN KINDLY GREETED BY ROOSEVELT

REMEMBERS C. A. AHERN, WHO TOOK BACK NEVADA'S VOTE
FOR THE PRESIDENT.

Con A. Ahern has reason to know the trait of Colonel Roosevelt in keeping those whom he knows constantly in memory. It is six years now since the favorite of the Comstock took the vote of Nevada to Washington for the then president of the United States.

He was warmly received then and on the colonel's visit here on the campus Roosevelt spied Con Ahern on the grounds, instantly recognized him and demanded to be taken to him.

He greeted Ahern effusively, recalling his last meeting. Later Con brought three beautiful specimens of Comstock ore to the colonel and after expressing delight the colonel asked that they be forwarded to his home.—Reno Journal.

RAISING THE ILL-FATED BATTLESHIP MAINE

One would hardly think that in raising the Maine, engineering work would be undertaken, the like of which has never been attempted before. Yet such is the fact, as we get it from the Engineering News. That paper presents the details of the work, and they are interesting, even to the lay man.

The new and untried engineering task lies in the construction of the coffer dam about the Maine wreck, which dam, in character, dimensions, and conditions to be overcome, differs from any other ever built. It is to be built against steel piling so as to surround the wreck of the vessel about 325 feet in length and lying in 37 feet of water. The dam must be strong enough to withstand the pressure on all sides, and high enough to keep out the water in all tides and weather.

This plan is considered the only feasible one that will permit the engineers to study the wreck and determine its cause. When the dam is pumped out the wreck will be open to the inspection of the experts just as it sank after the terrific explosion. It is only by such methods that the experts can get at the truth as to the cause of the explosion so far as we wish to determine whether it was external or internal.

An additional appropriation of $350,000 has been voted for this work, $50,000 of which will be required for the completion of the coffer dam; $25,000 for pumping out the dam and bracing the ship; $225,000 for removing the wreck and restoring the site to its original condition; and $15,000 for caring for the dead and setting the main mast of the ship as a monument at Arlington. The remaining $35,000 will be used for returning the plant used in the undertaking to the United States and for incidental expenses. The only possible credit to the account will be some $70,000, to be realized from the sale of the steel piling used in the construction of the coffer dam.

As an engineering feat, and as a work of national good faith and fairness, to say nothing of the patriotic duty involved, the raising of the Maine will be infinitely to the credit of this country.

MR. WINGFIELD RETURNS.

Mr. and Mrs. George Wingfield arrived in Reno from the coast on No. 10 Monday morning. Mr. Wingfield is ruddy with health and states that he will remain in Nevada indefinitely. They have reopened their beautiful home on the south side, which was closed for the winter.
